Preamble

India has always had a rich repository of traditional knowledge systems pertaining to the disciplines of architecture and planning since the prehistoric times of Harappan civilization. Magnificent built heritage as well as the theoretical texts across historical epochs are living proof of this continuous system. Some examples of notable literary texts which can be considered under the ‘Indian System of Architecture’ are Vastushastra, Shilpashastra, Mansara etc., which encompassed diverse aspects: ranging from planning, architecture, building material properties, construction techniques interiors including iconography to sculpture to even vehicle design.

Since the early modern era, numerous scholars have interpreted and contributed to this knowledge base and this attempt is continuing even now. However, our curriculums only cover a very small part of this knowledge system, primarily due to the lack of readily available literature and shortage of appropriate resource persons. This Webinar series seeks to enrich us on these traditional knowledge systems for encouraging their applications in contemporary designs and practices.
